Deadline

Deadline for Proposals – Friday 29 March 2024

Evaluation Criteria

Short-listed proposals are anonymised prior to evaluation by the selection committee. We strongly recommended that proposed abstracts contain extensive emphasis on how the session will address four evaluation criteria:

- Value - the session should provide a clear value proposition for professionals with more than fifteen years of experience;
- Uniqueness – preference is given to sessions that provide exclusive launch of new materials, research or methods and ideally the session should be unique and not previously presented at any other public forum or conference;
- Timeliness – the proposed material should be relevant and timely;
- Approach – the session content and style should be tailored to the expectations of the COSAC audience as discussed below.

Session Style & Audience Expectations

Sales content is strictly prohibited at COSAC.

The COSAC audience expects unique, thought-provoking content of the very highest quality, innovative strategies and methods, research or case studies that reveal real challenges and inspirational solutions.

Sessions should not be positioned as traditional conference lectures. Presenters must be aware that the COSAC audience expects to participate extensively in the proposed session: interaction will be frequent; questions and challenges may be relentless.

COSAC expects that your session should attract feedback from our demanding audience that averages a score greater than 9/10 for content value.

Programme Announcement: We expect to advise successful applicants by Friday 26 April 2024.

This invitation to submit proposals for papers regrettably does not guarantee selection. Please feel free to pass on this Call for Papers to any other interested party should you feel that they could make a suitable contribution to the COSAC Programme or have an interest in supporting or sponsoring COSAC 2024.
